Hi Nina,

Here is the maniacals list, as well as a copy of the e-mail that I sent to Kenny last week, that outlines where we are in our organizing and development, in a nutshell.
It was great to talk with you yesterday – I look forward to meeting you – perhaps in August.

Best Regards

Dear Kenny,

Here is the list of maniacals - those who have given $1000 or over. There is nothing secret about this list, don't worry - it's printed in the back of the magazine. Anyone can read it.

In light of our conversation, I would suggest that you offer your ideas on the list based on what you feel would be an appropriate way to address the joint approach - how we are offering reinforcement for the education agenda that you are doing through our media work.It is really important to me to know that we are collaborating actively.

I will call you later this morning to talk about this- again, some of the final decisions about how we would proceed are up to others - Mike will have the final say about editorial direction, and David will have final say about any business relationship. But maybe if you and I can sketch out a plan, then we can make this happen faster and more coherently .

In terms of what we are looking for from our funders, we are soliciting support for our campaign to increase the circulation, and our goal is to raise $150,000 by the end of the month, of which we have raised $35,000. I think that funders who are mutually supportive will know that increased circulation of Whole Earth means that much broader outreach for Bioneers.
As with Bioneers, our goal is to find more avenues to reach a younger readership. This is crucial to our long term survival, and crucial to the germination of the work which we explore in the magazine. I don't feel the magazine has to change much at all to reach a younger readership, in either design or content - they just have to be able to find it. Thus, the circulation campaign.

I want you to know that my first paid work in activism was with a non-profit education organization in NYC. What I always wished for at that time was a regular voice in the media so that the voices of the activists and organizers who were conducting the programs could be heard by a much broader audience than we could ever reach with the programs. This is one reason why now, almost twenty years later, it's so satisfying to be on this end of things.
I'm with you on this one wholeheartedly.

Best Regards,
Stephanie
